THREE LITTLE WORDS

... that President Nixon could have said but didn't in his speech to the nation last week just might have been the words that could affect a cure for many of the ills in our country today.

"I'll step aside."
At this moment if the President would resign his position and turn the reins over to Vice President Ford, it would, in my opinion, give the country such a boost that it wouldn't seem the same. It would do more to restore confidence in our nation than anything.

Lyndon Johnson lived up to the task of doing about the same thing in 1968 when he said, "I will not run again."

He saw his presence on the ticket as an obstacle to the healing of wounds in our country, and he mustered the great courage it required to tell the people so.

Nixon's case is far different from Johnson's. The Texas was at that time unjustly [my personal opinion, naturally] bombarded because of a war that had gone sour. Nixon stands on trial for misdeeds perpetrated against the country by himself and/or his underlings.

The people have lost confidence in him. And all his stubborn efforts "to prove a point" will not regain that confidence. Too many times he has told the people something only to be proved wrong.

In his speech he asked the people to hold down spending. Why did he not hold down the spending of millions of dollars that have been poured into his places at San Clemente, in Florida and at Camp David? Why does he have the largest White House staff of any president in the history of our country? Why is he spending millions of dollars of tax money fighting the system that was established by our forefathers to insure we Americans of a way to discard our dirty linen when it begins to pile up in high offices?

Why doesn't he admit that his domestic policies have not produced the desired results, but in actuality, have brought us nearer the brink of a depression than we have been in many a year?

Why doesn't he have the courage to just stand up and say: "I'll step aside?"

History would remember him far more kindly for that than it ever will for Watergate or his lack of ability to cope with the fiscal problem of our country.

THE ARROGANT AMERICAN

... is a title well deserved by many of our countrymen who travel on foreign soil. Certainly, some Americans are not arrogant, but we all wear the same black eye gained by those who are.

We saw it on our People-to-People Tour, several times in fact, and each time I did not like it. In fact, I muttered so loudly in my mustache about it that I am sure the people on the tour with us resented my mouthings.

Why is it that we Americans "just must try to Americanize" everyone? It is so obvious that we think we are the "greatest, the smartest and the most advanced" people in the world. And most of us don't hesitate to "tell all those backward people" about it.

We are loud. We are boisterous. We are obnoxious. We are irritating in all our "don't turn down the volume, because we are Americans and have been ordained as missionaries to get through to these people." We are arrogant.

No wonder people the world over resent us. We cannot allow them to brag on their achievements without pointedly reminding them that "we did it better." We cannot allow them to have pride in their country, their culture, their life, because, after all, none of these come anywhere near what we have in our country.

We find fault. We criticize. We castigate. We show no trace of tolerance. We just keep on "doing our thing" of giving proof positive that we deserve the title "the arrogant Americans."

MRS. FLORENCE HUEGELE

... of San Antonio writes to cancel her subscription to the Anvil Herald. She says that at 80 years-old she can't see well enough to read.

We certainly are sorry that she has to be deprived of her word from home, we do appreciate the years she has faithfully read the Anvil Herald.

Delegates to the first Texas Constitutional Convention in 100 years, Tuesday night postponed a new constitution in Texas for many years by failing to vote out the proposed document they have spent some $4 million on since January 8.

The final vote fell three short of the 121 needed to send the document to the public. Some who voted against the document did so for reasons of special interest, some for political reasons and some for the fact they did not see the proposed constitution being good for the state as a whole.

Wednesday morning, in a special telephone interview Rep. John H.

Poerner of Hondo gave the Anvil Herald this account of his personal action:

"Optimism was prevalent on January 8, 1974, and remained a guiding force throughout the Convention until each article had been fully debated and passed by a majority vote on the floor of the Convention."

"This concluding floor action transpired on July 9, 1974, and the only remaining action by the Convention was to pass the composite document by a two-thirds majority vote of the membership (121 positive votes)."

"I for one did not think we had a problem. I believe in the democratic process of free and open debate, offering the various amendments and when it is all over recognizing the parties on the winning side and conceding victory to their cause. Consequently, I expect the same from my colleagues when I have won the debate for my particular issue and to receive their congratulatory statements which is always followed by their affirmative vote."

Reason For Vote

"I voted for resolution No. 1 which included all the items debated on the floor of the Convention."

"I generally voted against all other resolutions introduced by the Submissions and Transition Committee since they removed some of the most critical issues from the document."

"I am of the opinion that the majority of my constituents would not vote to spend an additional $1 million to submit a document to the people that is doomed to failure."

[Editor's Note: Rep. Poerner has data on the many changes members of the Submissions and Transition Committee made on articles approved on the floor of the Convention. This data, which will be published next week, will show how this one committee gutted the wishes of the majority.]

Emergency outline told by M E C

While providing no present encouragement for supplying Hondo and Castroville with electricity, as outlined in an Anvil Herald story last week, Medina Electric Co-Op did outline an alternative power supply plan that will include the two towns in case of emergency.

The backup system will utilize a joint MEC-Central Power and Light sub-station near Moore, as well as a connection with Public Service Board lines near Castroville, to provide double service for all three systems in the event of a generator or line failure.

At present, Hondo is served by a line from San Antonio, and there is no link with either CP&L or MEC. If that line were disabled, Hondo would simply be out of power.

In other action at a meeting July 22 between MEC Manager L. E. (Red) Gross and the Hondo and Castroville City Councils, Medina Electric indicated its willingness to provide power to the two cities in the event Public Service refused to serve them.

But, Gross cautioned, legal restrictions of the Rural Electrification Act forbid them from competing with private enterprise. As long as Public Service is willing to serve the cities, Medina Electric can not step in.

Besides, Gross added, power costs involved in serving the two cities through Medina Electric would probably exceed those of Public Service, even under their new, higher rate.

Power would have to be purchased by Medina Electric from Central Power and Light, then resold to the cities.

Gross did reaffirm, however, that Medina Electric was capable of handling the load of power, as well as expansion of service with the growth of its present customers.

"There's just not going to be any more cheap power," Gross summed it up.

Directory expansion set

Judging a book by its cover may not be a good idea unless it's the 1974 telephone directory. Then it may tell you a lot.

"Effective November 1, 1974, the Hondo directory becomes part of the Bandera-Castroville-Devine-Hondo telephone directory," said Jo Nell Tarvin, manager for Southwestern Bell.

Mrs. Tarvin said the directory will also include LaCoste, Lytle, Medina Lake, Natalia, Pipe Creek and Yancey and the Independent exchanges of Medina and Tarpley.

"All frequently called telephone numbers will be available in one book instead of several and Yellow Page listings, including those of businesses in the trading area, will be accessible to more people," said Mrs. Tarvin.

She said the White Pages will contain separate alphabetical listings for each city and a common Call-Guide for emergency numbers.

"This should be a timesaver since it will enable customers to call someone in a neighboring town without having to call Directory Assistance," she said.

Mrs. Tarvin said combined directories are already in some cities. "This is true especially in places where people commute and do business in several locations."

"Local telephone users who have seen this elsewhere suggested we do it here also," she said.

Medina County farmers would say 'Nyet'

By Burnis Lawrence

You can bet your last irrigation well that Medina County farmers and ranchers wouldn't go for the agricultural system in the Soviet Union.

In fact, since they have grown up under our system, they would probably spit in someone's eye should he suggest farming and ranching like the Soviets do.

There are two types of farms or specialized and this holds true especially in trying to separate ranching from farming.

Collective farms usually are large in acreage requiring many workers. Farm workers elect their director and others who help him run the farm.

But in these farms, the Kremlin has allowed a bit of capitalism to creep in. The state sets a quota on The farm is managed by a director named by the state and all the crops that are harvested are also owned and sold by the state. The state also pays the expenses on the farm.

Under the present system, these farms, as well as the collective farms, usually concentrate on one product: wheat, corn, potatoes, cabbage, cattle, etc. At one time they produced several products on one farm, but now they have ranches in the Soviet Union-state farms or collective farms.

On a state farm, which is usually smaller in size than a collective farm, all workers are paid a guaranteed salary. Since the average salary in the entire Soviet Union is approximately 160 rubles per month (about $200) the farm workers do not make much money. However, they do have some fringe benefits which will be explained later in this story.

RURAL VIEW ... Rural Russian villages look like this. These two pictures were taken from the window of the Red Arrow Express train somewhere between Moscow and Leningrad. They show a scene not too far different than many areas in rural America. The lush grass would indicate this area receives plenty of rain, and the footbridge in the top picture would also indicate it gets muddy when it rains.

Welcome to our Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Schulte and Mr. and Mrs. James Schulte cordially invite all their friends and relatives to the Golden Wedding Anniversary of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Schulte on August 11, 1974, at St. Paul's Lutheran Educational Building. The hours are 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

FAMILIAR STORE... Imagine the surprise of the Anvil Herald publisher and his wife when, as they were strolling along the streets of West Berlin, the familiar name of Leinweber's sprang out at them. It might be a little misleading to say that they went all the way to West Berlin to shop at Leinweber's. But there it is and Burnis Lawrence is pointing it out to photographer Patricia Lawrence.

NOW COME ON... Publisher Burnis Lawrence thought this when he saw this familiar yellow and green John Deere sign on the 530 acre Industrial and Agricultural Exhibition grounds in Moscow, Soviet Union. "Surely, Elmo Pope hasn't expanded way over here," he told himself. Anyway he snapped the picture and asked the guide about the sign.

She said that several years ago Moscow had hosted an International Exhibition of the Meadows and John Deere had displayed equipment there. The exhibition contained many permanent displays such as space, vocational education and others and the few hours spent there wasn't near enough.

Another Fine Texas Recipe

CANTALOUPE COOLER

½ cup cantaloupe
¾ cup ice water
1 ½ tsp. fresh lemon or lime juice
2 tsp. sugar
2 Tbsp. crushed ice

Place cantaloupe in blender and run until cantaloupe is pureed or mash cantaloupe and press through sieve. Add remaining ingredients. Whizz and shake vigorously until frothy. Serve garnished with a slice of lemon or lime or a sprig of fresh mint. Yield: 1 serving (about 1 cup).

STRAWBERRY WAKE-UP

1 pint fresh strawberries, washed and hulled or frozen strawberries
1 carton (8 ounces) plain yogurt
½ cup milk
3 Tbsp. brown sugar (packed)
1 tsp. vanilla
¼ tsp. ground allspice
2 drops red food color

Measure all ingredients into blender. Cover and blend on high speed 10 seconds. Stop and start blender, blend 10 seconds. Pour into chilled glasses. Garnish with whole strawberries on straws. Yield: 4 servings (about 5 ounces each).

total production and all above that quota can be sold at market by the farm and distributed among the workers.

Although no one mentioned the possibility, I cannot help but wonder if perhaps that quota is always so high that no goods are available for sale.

Both systems follow the same practice of giving each worker a place in which to live, a small plot of ground, and some stock. With these he is to produce the goods that keeps his family going. However, if he has any left over he can sell it at market and keep the money.

Writers on the Soviet Union say this practice has created some problems. According to them these workers upset the state greatly by spending more time on their own crops than they do on those of the state, thus, the individual plots produce a higher yield. I don't know how the state has solved this problem, or if it has at all.

The Ukraine Republic is known as the "breadbasket" of the Soviet Union, and flying into Kiev, its capital, late Saturday afternoon on July 13, we could see why. As far as the eye could see were the patchwork greens and browns of one cultivated field after another. It had rained for several days and everything hit us in full color.

And on the way into the city of Kiev along a beautiful, tree-lined four-lane highway, we could see farm homes, plowed fields and an occasional indication of irrigation systems. These were of the pipe on wheels variety and rolled across the field as they watered.

Between Moscow and Leningrad our Red Arrow Express passenger train traveled through some extremely remote and apparently backward country where we saw some farms and very few cattle.

Getting up at 5:15 a.m. (and that's really not early, for the sun comes up at about 2 a.m. Since that area is so near the North Pole it really never gets completely dark in the summertime.) we did see several large fields of cabbage and potatoes. Hay, which was mostly just grass, was cut along the tracks by hand and early morning saw the farmers out swinging the scythes back and forth.

Coming into Leningrad twodays later by bus from seeing the outstanding fountains of Pedrovets, we actually saw several women cutting hay by hand. And with the weather at a warm 85 degrees, many of them were dressed in scanty bathing suits. I must admit that the ones I saw did not give me the urge to tell the driver to stop the bus.

Houses in the remote area through which our train traveled are made of logs or lumber, with some of them in small villages being built of stone or brick. Many appear extremely primitive, yet TV antennas were thick as fleas on an East Texas hounddog.

In the south around Kiev the homes looked more prosperous and better built. Going into Moscow from the airport a distance of about 35 miles, we saw many houses that looked in pretty bad shape, but apparently liveable. In all three cities concentration on housing is evidenced by many new apartment complexes.

We did not see any farm machinery, although I am told they are mechanizing the agricultural industry at an increasing rate. I know the Soviet Union is now selling tractors in various parts of the U.S. Midwest, but that does not necessarily mean they have enough at home. To bring more money into the country they are prone to let the people do with what they have and export products like tractors.

One afternoon in Moscow we did visit the Agricultural and Industrial Exhibition on the outer edge of the city. This is a 530 acre permanent exhibition that covers many fields, such as space, farming, vocational education, etc. While at this exhibition we saw a small building which bore the John Deere tractor sign. We snapped a picture for the benefit of Elmo Pope and his Hondo Implement Co. We were told that a few years back Moscow hosted an international agricultural exhibition and John Deere had a display.

Our guide in Kiev, a pleasant, friendly and well-dressed girl named Luda, told us the Ukrainian farmers are expecting a bumper crop of wheat when they harvest their winter crop in August.

All in all it proved interesting and informative, but I still would wager that Medina County farmers and ranchers would much rather visit the bank more often for loans than to submit to the farming system in the Soviet Union.

Schlentz visit San Francisco

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Schlentz of 207 Avenue M and grandson, Charles E. Schlentz, departed from San Antonio July 19th for a vacation with Mrs. Schlentz's niece, Mrs. W. M. Bailey, formerly Lillie Helmke, daughter of the late Fritz W. Helmke of Hondo and San Antonio.

The visit took place with Mrs. Bailey and her husband W. M. "Bill" Bailey who reside in Burlingame, California, a suburb of the San Francisco peninsula near the Bay.

The Schlentzs along with the Baileys toured San Francisco, Fisherman's Wharf, Chinatown, Napa Valley, Tamales Bay, San Jose, Santa Cruz, Oakland and many other places in both the peninsula and East Bay area.

Mr. Schlentz thinks the cable cars are just great and Mrs. Schlentz enjoyed it all, especially all the beautiful trees, flowers, and mountains among other things. Grandson Charles really had a lot of fun, but is holding his remarks at this time.

The family returned home Friday July 26th looking fresh and relaxed but it was good to be home with old friends and relatives.

Mrs Teague to direct local drive

Mrs. R. A. Teague of Hondo has been named chairman of the Breath of Life Campaign to fight children's lung diseases, according to Mrs. J. H. Grizzard, president of the Lone Star Chapter, National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

Mrs. Teague will lead local volunteers in raising funds to support research and care programs for children affected by lung-damaging diseases like cystic fibrosis, severe asthma, chronic bronchitis, bronchiectasis, and a condition called "childhood emphysema".

Cystic fibrosis, an incurable genetic disease, is inherited when both parents carry the recessive gene for C/F. It is believed that one in twenty persons or 10 million Americans may carry the C/F gene, usually without knowing it. Current research funded by the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation is seeking a practical test to identify these carriers.

These youngsters are Terry Arcos, Anita Batteau, Irene Guedea, Esmeralda Martinez, Elma Molina, Rogelio Morin, Christy Palacios, Debbie Perez, Wayne Pyle, Michael Rummel, Annette Saathoff and Kim Saathoff.

Amemorial to Mrs. Ethel Blasingame has been donated by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Herring.

Various magazines have been brought to the library by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Poerner, Mr. and Mrs. John Farley, Mildred Tarr, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Chapa and Glena Reilly and the Reilly family.

Mike Gross and Catherine Gross have given many mystery and psychology books and paperbooks, some of these being psychology textbooks.

A generous contribution of children's books, novels and magazines has come from Mr. and Mrs. Norman Buescher and family.

Other new books now ready for readers are The Dogs of War by Frederick Forsyth and The Big Broadcast 1920-1950 by Frank Buxton and Bill Owen.

Yet again, Mrs. Maw pleads with readers to return their overdue books and reminds them that, if these books are not returned, they will be billed for the cost of replacing them.

The bookdrop is always available if readers are unable to get to library during regular hours, which are 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Miss Seifert, Mr. Swope wed in Ft. Worth

Miss Susan Elizabeth Siefert of Dallas and Mr. Jeffrey Gordon Swope of Fort Worth were married in Holy Family Catholic Church, Fort Worth, on Saturday evening, June 22.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Siefert of 294 Avenue M, Hondo. The groom is the son of Captain and Mrs. James S. Swope of 4029 Clayton Road, Fort Worth.

Mr. Swope is an area director for Cosmetics International Corporation. Susan is employed as a commercial interior designer for Metrex Business Interiors.

The ecumenical ceremony was performed by Msgr. Vincent Wolf of Holy Family Catholic Church, and Rev. Walter Underwood.

Serving her sister as Matron of Honor was Anne Koontz of College Station. Bridesmaids included Rebecca Seifert of Dallas, sister of the bride; Shanon Swope of Arlington, sister of the groom; and Jean Griffith of Dallas.

Serving as best man was Dr. Leslie Boelsch of LaGrange, uncle to the groom. Groomsmen included Courtney Koontz of College Station, Jimmy Swope of Lubbock, brother of the groom; and David McGuffey of Lubbock, cousin of the groom.

John Seifert of Hondo, the bride's father, gave her away in marriage.

Ushers included Pat Seifert of Sunset, Texas and John M. Seifert of Stephenville, brothers of the bride; and Samford Kriner of Houston and Donald Wood of Nacogdoches, cousins of the groom.

The bride wore a formal-length dress fashioned of silk organza over tulle and satin. It was styled in a fitted princess style bodice which fell into a full skirt and chapel train. Two rows of circle ruffles edged the skirt.

A high-rise collar was trimmed in daisy designs of lace, and the same lace trimmed the cuffs of her full sleeves and the skirt where it attached to the ruffles.

Tiny buttons cascaded down the fitted bodice. Her long veil of bridal illusion fell from a headpiece entwined with pastel spring flowers. She carried long stems of spring pastel flowers.

The bridesmaids wore formal length dresses of spring green eyelet printed with white floral design. They were trimmed with white tuxedo style collars and cuffs, tiny buttons trimming the front. Each carried white long stem gladiolas.

The altar was decorated with two tall basket arrangements of gladiolas and asters, along with two arrangements of vigil candles.

Following the ceremony a reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. John Seifert at the home of Captain and Mrs. James Swope.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over chiffon.

The table held a candelabra of pastel spring flowers and white tapers. The same flowers trailed to the three-tier white frosted cake topped with an arrangement of pastel flowers. Party punch was served from a silver service.

The groom's table held an arrangement of assorted fruit, turquoise tapers and a mocha frosted spice cake decorated with white grape clusters and silver almonds.

Coffee in brass service was also served from this table. Assorted party foods were served to guests from two tables.

For the wedding trip to Durango, Colorado the bride chose a going-away outfit of a light beige linen two-piece suit with A-line skirt complimented with a bottle-green dotted crepe blouse and lapels of her short fitted jacket. Beige accessories were used.

Following their wedding trip the couple will be at home at 6769 Eastridge in Dallas.

This week All she wrote

by Edna McDade

The first day of the eighth month of the year 1974 finds me wondering where the preceding seven months have gone.

Might not be a bad idea to push that useless ponderation aside and try to concentrate on the challenges sure to present themselves during the remaining 5/12 of this year. [The fraction applies as months go.]

I must quote what one of my third graders [who shared my aversion to math] told me years ago after a test which he failed, "I always mean to do GOOD but mostly I seem to do worse!"

Sometimes I think that must be what I do with a lot of precious time.

Well, time's a wastin' so, let me get along with the 31st ASW for this year:

This is an open letter to TONY MENDOZA, as director of MCM, in response to his appeal for volunteer workers to staff the Museum's host personnel:

Dear Tony: You know how I feel about our Medina County Museum. Nothing would please me more than to be able to respond with a "Count me in. I'll serve when and where I'm needed." The only "catch" is that I'm bound by what I think lawyers call the "Statute of Limitation". My limitations include the distance between here and there, and the assorted ouches that claim priority where physical activities are involved.

Excuses, excuses. . . but these are for real! Truth of the matter is I truly envy the Volunteers.

Announcement of the 1975 Stock Show officers brought memories of the meetings I attended for several years. I note that the Feb. 3-4 Show will be under "dEvine" guidance, this being the city of Devine's turn to host the arrangements and festivities.

GLENN BRAGG must be continuing to do a good job as secretary since he drew the same job. . . and at no mention of any increase in "salary".

I found familiar names among the newly elected or re-elected directors, with that of HARTLEY HOWARD bobbing up in several places. He always applies a happy philosophy and an impartial, good-natured approach to any of the many tasks assigned to him.

Fact of the matter is, any successful county stock show, especially at the junior level, is dependent on the cooperation and dedication of its senior leadership and this, the Medina County Show has.

Sixty [60] [count 'em] entries in Medina County's first 4-H Vegetable Show. Twenty-two [22] varieties of vegetables.

This promises a bright future for the young growers and an even brighter future for prospective shoppers at the area's produce departments.

Maybe some of the "imported" produce which arrives looking long past its "prime" can be sup-planted by the real home-grown garden-to-table variety in the sweet buy-&-buy.

Let's hear it for the success of all future 4-H vegetable projects!

The fate of our over-worked Texas Constitution still hangs in the balance of something, somewhere. However, maybe by the time it meets with the necessary approval, the convention secretary, Charles Schnable, will have had time to correct some, if not all, of what he called "bad grammar and absurd remarks" to which he says "legislator-delegates are frequently prone."

Examples cited included "Clarify [clarify] the situation" and "physical [fiscal] responsibility".

Five Texas A&M University students from the Hondo area were cited for having earned "Distinguished Student" rank. And these five young men represent part of only ten percent of the University's undergraduate enrollment.

I was impressed by the fact that each student won his honors in five different fields: electrical engineering, accounting, agronomy, mechanical engineering, and agricultural education.

Congratulations all the way up to degree-awards time to: LACY C. GILLIAM, JR., MARK T. LAGLEDER, WAYNE F. STEIN, TIMOTHY O. WIEMERS and ALLEN D. WURZBACH.

One of these days, Medina County will be pretty well represented, professionally, somewhere. Just where, who knows?

Recently, I read in the ANVIL HERALD something about plans of the Texas Department of Agriculture's sponsorship of a FAMILY LAND HERITAGE PROGRAM.

This would honor Medina County farmers and ranchers whose families [ancestors] have held the same land for the past 100 years, since 1874.

Perhaps several such families would qualify for recognition in the special ceremonies to be held at the Texas State Fair this year. Their records would be included in a Land Heritage Directory, planned for later publication.

Start digging through the family archives, folks!

The city of Woodboro, Refugio County, "reluctantly" raised its tax rates, for the first time in over 30 years.

Said one councilwoman, "We aren't raising the taxes. It's Austin. Blame them!"

Would you believe diarrhea can be good for you? Seems it's nature's way to get rid of bacteria before they can multiply and make you sicker. In recent tests, those who took anti-diarrhea medication ended up with longer fevers and illnesses.

Window views provide added beauty to journey through Europe, Russia

By Burnis Lawrence

SOMEWHERE A-BROAD . . . Could it be possible that such a small thing as "the view from a hotel window" could make a difference in one's vacation trip?

Patricia and I felt so on our recent Texas Press Association People-to-People tour to Europe and the Soviet Union. In fact with one or two exceptions we had views that added immensely to the enjoyment of our journey.

At our first stop we stayed in the Pulitzer Hotel in Amsterdam. The room itself was delightful. An attic room on the top floor of an older part of the hotel, it boasted a gabled roof with 4 by 6 exposed beams adding a quaintness to a spacious and well decorated area.

The room overlooked a small, but pretty courtyard in one corner of which were placed two lamps with large, clear, circular globes. Between the lamps was a plaque which noted that a certain brick in the wall had been given the hotel by Howard Johnson of American hotel and motel fame and came from a hotel in "New Amsterdam". The Pulitzer was once a Howard Johnson property, built originally from a series of old warehouses.

At the back of the courtyard was an ancient church.

Zurich's Central Hotel faced the Lemmit River and our corner window opened on the most beautiful view in town, looking up the river across the main shopping area to the spires of two ancient churches thrusting high over the city and reaching toward a background of distant mountains. The Clock on the St. Peter's Church, one of those we could see, measures more than 27 feet across, and Zurich residents say it not only is the largest in Switzerland, but the entire world.

Fortune smiled on us again in Lucerne, Switzerland when we were assigned room 411 in the old Grand Hotel National, stretching a block along the banks of beautiful Lake Lucerne.

From our balcony, admittedly a tiny one, but still a balcony, we had a breathtaking view of the city as it curved around the lower end of the lake, with layers of mountains framing the backdrop for the picture post card scene. The highest peak in the area, Mt. Pilatus, rose majestically over the other ranges with its snow-capped peaks giving it a "grand-daddy" of the lot appearance.

Our room at the Hotel National was spacious, but then we saw the bathroom. It was something else and even included a foot bath or as some insisted "a sietz bath." We don't really know, because we did not use it for either purpose.

Moscow's Intourist Hotel was one of the west were concerned. Although in the distance we could see part of the city, our 7th floor room actually provided us with only a good view of building tops. Not bad, but not good either.

The hotel was built in 1972 and from the outside posed a strikingly impressive picture of a modern hotel. Inside it was very elaborate in lobby and restaurant space, with a restaurant being located on several floors, but the rooms were rather stingy in space. Reminded us of some of the smaller motels we have slept in here at home.

A funny thing happened to us on our way to bed at the Intourist. On our beds we found sheets made like a sack, closed at both ends and the sides. And in the center of one wider side of the sheet was a hole about two feet in diameter. We asked each other: "What the heck?" and then went to bed and covered up with them.

Well, the maids discovered we were Texas country people for the next night when we returned to the hotel, they had taken the colorful blankets and stuffed them inside the sheets, with the blankets peeking out from the holes to provide a bright spot of color on the center of the bed.

An overnight ride to Leningrad by train and we were housed in the Leningrad Hotel, another new, modern-looking hotel catering to tourists. A much better hotel than the Intourist. Again our window gave us an exhilarating picture, this time of the Neva River flowing past our hotel and bending by the Hermitage, the Winter Palace and other important points of interest in this historically old city.

Right below us was the naval ship Aurora which is permanently berthed there to provide training for the naval cadets living across the river from the hotel.

Lady luck continued on our side in Kiev. We had a room on the 10th floor that overlooked the square, down the hill and over the trees to the Dnieper River in the distance and another part of the city across the river. The river could be seen winding into the distance, with foot and vehicle bridges crossing here and there.

In this room, we had the first television set we had seen since leaving the United States, but somehow we forgot to turn it on. But looking back, I am doubtful that we could have understood the programs since we learned only about four words of Russian while over there. That was "good morning," "good night," "goodbye," "thank you," and "no."

Before leaving the Soviet Union let me say they have a different system of room control than anywhere else we stayed. Each floor has a caretaker, usually a woman, who keeps your room key for you and directs the cleaning of the rooms on that floor. You do not have to worry about the desk, just deposit your key with the woman on the floor.

And one thing I must attempt to describe about Russian bathrooms before we leave the Soviet Union is the toilet paper. You can't call it tissue because tissue it is not. It could never threaten the standing of Charmin or Aurora. In fact, some corncobs in long ago East Texas were downy soft in comparison. Rough and scratchy the paper certainly made one think twice before deciding he had to go. And in a multi-million dollar hotel it was hung on a five and ten cent roller; to match the cost of the paper I presume.

On to West Berlin and our Kempinski Hotel window showed us history in a graphic manner. The old Kaiser Wilhelm Church, which once dominated the city in all its ancient glory, stands battered and charred in the middle of the modern portion of West Berlin to remind everyone of the horrors of war. It was bombed during World War II by American B-17's and British Lancaster's.

We could also see many of the modern buildings of the city and an elevated railroad, and the clock, which had been repaired on the old church gave us the correct time.

Like all the European and Russian bathrooms this one had a shower with a flexible hose and a fancy handle. You can move it all over the place and direct the water anywhere you want it. I have never seen one in the USA.

At night the maid comes in and turns down your covers and then places a towel at the side of the bed to prevent your feet from hitting the cold floor.

Madrid proved romantic, but the Palacio del Luz Hotel broke the chain of beautiful views, although the courtyard we could see was picturesque enough, had it not been bare except for the window flower boxes on the apartment windows behind the hotel. And here we went back to the overhead shower-minus the flexible hose.

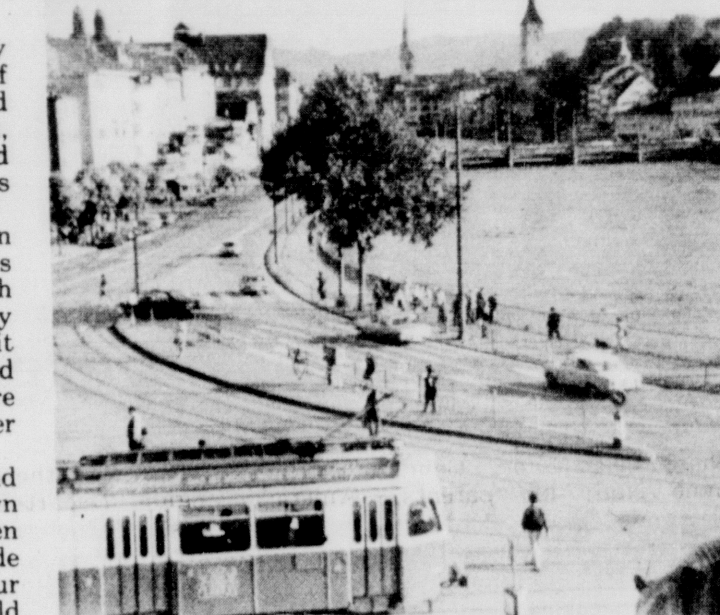

So looking back to 20 thrilling and adventure-some days, Patricia and I thank our luck for our room assignments, for the beautiful views they provided us of the cities in which we stayed added a visible and tangible difference to our trip.

VA Facts

Hundreds of members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, past and present, readily acknowledge the role of the GI Bill in providing opportunities to seek and hold public office.

Although the final impact of the original and subsequent GI Bills has not yet been evaluated, it has already gone down in history as one of the most enlightened programs ever provided those who served any nation.

During the 12 years of the original GI Bill 7.8 million World War II veterans, out of a total of 16.5 million, used their GI education and training benefits at a program cost of $14.5 billion. Vietnam veterans are exceeding that rate.

American Legion holds convention

LAREDO-- The 56th Annual Convention of the American Legion, Department of Texas, conducted here July 18-21 proved to be one of the most colorful and entertaining in history, according to Jose Guerra, general convention chairman.

Department Commander Lynn Steward of Fort Worth presided over the Legion conclave with all general sessions held in the Laredo Civic Center Auditorium. Heading the American Legion Auxiliary was Mrs. Jack (Nancy) Whitson of Houston.

Honorable Dolph Briscoe, Governor of Texas, delivered the keynote address on Friday afternoon at the opening joint session of the Legion and Auxiliary. Laredo Mayor, Honorable J. C. Martin Jr., welcomed the delegates to Laredo.

Friday evening at 5 p.m. the Parade of Champions Contest for Uniformed Organizations, Milton Schmidt of New Braunfels, Chairman, took place at the Civic Center. Nearly 8,000 in prizes were awarded the winners of the colorful contest. This was followed by a barbecue for registered delegates and guests at the Convention and Banquet Hall. A Bathing Beauty Pageant followed in the Civic Center where Miss American Legion of 1974 was crowned.

Bob Armstrong, Commissioner, General Land Office, Austin, and chairman of Veterans Land Board, addressed the convention Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

Other outstanding speakers on Saturday included the Department Oratorical Contest Champion, Joe Dias Garcia of Dickinson, who delivered his winning oration and Dr. John W. Claiborne, Director, VA Hospital, Houston.

Aside from the color and entertainment the Legion and Auxiliary mapped out a full four-day program of serious business pertaining to vast Texas programs of the Legion and Auxiliary. The Executive Committee, Board of Trustees and key standing committees were busy throughout the convention.

The Memorial Service, under the direction of Edwin L. Johnson of Fort Worth, Dept. Chaplain, was conducted at 9 a.m. Sunday. The election of Department officers for the ensuing year concluded the convention.

People getting supplemental security income payments should promptly report changes in their other income to Social Security, according to Barton Irby, Social Security representative in San Antonio.

Supplemental security income payments have established a nationally uniform income floor for people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over or blind or disabled.

"Increases or decreases in income may affect the amount of monthly supplemental security income payments," Irby said. "People getting supplemental security income checks should report changes or expected changes in their wages, self-employment earnings, pension payments, and other income from any source except general increases in Social Security benefits."

Changes can be reported to any Social Security office.

People getting supplemental security income checks should promptly report change of address, marriage, separation, and any other circumstance that might affect their payments.

The Federal supplemental security income program is run by the Social Security Administration. "But, supplemental security income payments are made from general revenues, not from Social Security contributions," Irby explained.

For further information, see your Social Security representative when he is in your area. Your representative will be in Hondo at the Council Chamber City Hall on July 29 at 9 a.m.

Westbrook is in Who's Who

Wayne Westbrook, a senior at Hondo High School, was recently notified that he is to be featured in the eighth annual edition of Who's Who among American High School students, 1973-74, the largest student award publication in the nation.

Students from over 20,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the books. Less than 3 percent of the junior and senior class students nationwide are awarded this recognition.

Wayne is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Damon Westbrook of 907 28th St., Hondo.

He is active in Summer Golf Association, football, basketball, and high school golf. He is also in the National Honor Society and won the Parvuli Dei Award in Cub Scouts.

In addition to having his biography published in the book, Wayne will also compete for one of ten scholarship awards of $500-1,000 funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual "Survey of High Achievers". Wayne plans to attend Texas A&M University after graduation.

MORE HUNGRIES . . . Just to remind readers of all the hungry people who attended the annual St. John's Catholic Church Festival, and incidentally made it the most successful of all times, this picture shows more people in the chow line. Festival planners have expressed their gratitude to everyone in a special ad in this week's issue of the Hondo Anvil Herald. [Photo by Tony Mendoza]

Little League defeated by Kerrville

The Hondo-D'Hanis Little League All-Stars were eliminated from championship play Friday night, July 19, in Hondo as the Kerrville team scored six runs in the first two innings to win.

Winning pitcher Bobby Gutierrez had a no-hitter going until the fifth inning, when John Rummel lashed a single for Hondo-D'Hanis. His was the only hit of the evening by the All-Stars.

Rene Ramirez settled down in the final four innings of the game, allowing only two further Kerrville hits after the first two innings, but the damage had been done. Ramirez was tagged with the loss as Kerrville unleashed a five-hit attack including two homers, in the first and second innings.

Steve Schwartz singled for Kerrville in the first, then Troy Morburger knocked a long homer to score himself and Schwartz.

In the second, Eugene Garza singled and David Ward reached on an error. Richard Villareal also singled scoring Garza, then Steve Schwartz hit a three-run homer of his own.

The win gave Kerrville the District 21 championship.

Card of Thanks

We would like to express our appreciation to all of our wonderful friends for the many kindnesses extended to us in the loss of our daughter Johnnie and while I was in the hospital. It has brought us a greater appreciation of our friends. Dishes are still in our home that I don't know to whom they belong. God Bless each one of you.

WITH SENATOR . . . Rhonda Graff, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Graff of Hondo, is pictured with U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen. The picture was taken recently when Rhonda, who is working at the Anvil Herald this summer, participated in the Bentsen Bluebonnet Intern Program.

Cotton Costs Going Up, Up

AUSTIN—The total cost of producing cotton in 1974 could be at least 35 percent higher than 1973 averages, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has reported.

White also said that the average cost of producing one pound of lint cotton may reach 37 cents, up from the 28 cent average of 1964-72.

White said that costs of motor supplies and fertilizer could soar to more than 40 percent over 1973 averages.

Costs of other production items—interest, taxes and wage rates—increased nine percent from 1972 to 1973. The USDA Economic Research Service reported that farmers will pay almost 16 percent more for these items this year.

Nationally, cotton prices are high and could get higher because of increased production costs and tight supplies. Flooding in the Delta reduced the 1973 cotton crop. And when the export demand increased, it was apparent that cotton demand would outstrip production.

A 16th century king of Sweden was supposed to be able to control the weather with his hat.

Hondo's new loop is no cinch

Hondo may find its welcome into District 27-AA a mite too warm for comfort, according to this season's "Texas Football" magazine.

The annual forecast of Texas college and school-boy football fortunes placed the Owls third from the top of their new heap, which will include San Antonio Cole, Randolph AFB, Bandera, Medina Valley, Boerne and Hondo. Of these, the two San Antonio schools are expected to battle, for the lead, with Hondo in third. Fourth is newly-promoted Bandera, fifth is the Angry Orange and Boerne is slated to bring up the rear.

It's a tough league.

Hondo is no doubt familiar with the perennial bi-district foe Randolph, which has won its district ten years in a row.

But Cole, which came ever-so-close to breaking the Randolph string last fall, is actually picked to knock off the Ro-Hawks this year.

The Owls are portrayed as thin on returning talent, but with good prospects coming in. Mentioned are starters Tony Hackbeil at fullback and Paul Pope at flanker. Bobby Rios, Wayne Westbrook and Jim Jordan are pre-season picks to stand out.

BACK AT THE RANCH

Things look a little less hectic in the suddenly-tamer District 28-AA where, predictably, Devine and Pearsall are expected to fight it out for the crown. Challengers include Poteet, Cotulla and Somerset.

Of the two, author Dave Campbell gives the nod to 1973 runner-up Devine where tackle William Brown and halfback Homer Hernandez headline a stellar lineup.

Senior All Stars meet defeat

The long playoff road came to an abrupt end for the Hondo-D'Hanis-Bandera All Star Senior League team last Wednesday night. They were eliminated by Highland Hills of San Antonio, 7-0.

John Tunchez was the winning pitcher, striking out seven HDB batters and walking one. Bob Riley took the loss, striking out six and walking three.

broke a scoreless deadlock in the third inning with a three run attack which started with a double by Tunchez. A walk, sacrifice fly and a triple put three runs on the board.

San Antonio added three more in the fifth as another walk, an error and two singles did the job.

Hondo-D'Hanis-Bandera was held to only three hits -- all singles by Keigh Boyd, Hector Garcia and Preston Jennings.

HORSESHOE THROWING . . . is picking up in popularity in Medina County. And, it'll be a part of the fun at the D'Hanis Homecoming celebration Sunday. Here Rich Rohrbach prepares to throw a

MV 90's take playoff lead

The first round of the best-of-three Highway 90 League championship series was captured by the Medina Valley 90's Sunday. They defeated the D'Hanis Cardinals 12-1 in seven innings.

It was the eighth straight victory for the 90's, and the third straight defeat for the Cardinals. The Cards had led through almost the entire season, winning their first eight games of the ten-game schedule.

Jerry Burell picked up the victory for Medina Valley, while Walt Rothe was tagged with the loss. Burell went the distance for the 90's, but Rothe was lifted in the sixth for Bobby Joe Rothe.

Leading hitter for the 90's was Ronny Mangold, with a triple and two singles. Carl Keller rapped a three-run homer and a single, and Burell helped his cause with a solo homer.

The Cardinals had five hits, while the 90's had 9.

Tschirhart is named 'Outstanding Player'

Glynn Tschirhart, 18, a Castroville native and infielder for St. Mary's University baseball team this spring, was chosen Most Outstanding Player of the 26th Annual South Texas All-Star baseball game. The contest was held at V. J. Keefe Field Tuesday night, July 23.

The South Texas Team won over the San Antonio All-Stars, 2-1, with Tschirhart performing well at shortstop.

Tschirhart, a 1973 Medina Valley graduate, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Tschirhart of Castroville.

SPORT FACTS

Ralph Hauger

The best NY Mets winning streak is 11 games. But they have had losing strings of 17, 15, and 13 games over the years.

Somebody has dug up the old story about Umpire Bill Klem, who was regarded as the king of umpires in his day.

A woman fan was screaming at Klem from behind home plate. Disagreeing with his calls on balls and strikes, she shouted "If you were my husband, I'd put poison in your coffee."

Klem bowed and replied "Madam, if I were your husband, I'd drink it."

How much detergent is enough?

Getting the family clothing clean puts many homemakers in a dither, notes one specialist. "Do you settle for less clean clothes or do you hunt down the problem?" asks Mrs. Doris Myers, home management specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Detergent manufacturers reduced the amount of phosphate and made changes in formulas to protect the environment. Manufacturers increased the capacity of washing machines to take care of larger loads.

"Measuring detergent carefully is the best way to insure a clean wash and good washer operation," the specialist said. "Never be guilty of the 'dump method' of using detergent or other laundry aids—measure them carefully and never mix different brands in one wash load," she warned. The amount of detergent needed depends upon the type of washer, wash load size and type of items in the wash load. It will also vary according to the kind and amount of soil, type of detergent and the hardness of the water, she explained.

Front loading washers usually need less detergent than top-loading models. Package directions usually specify amounts for both types of equipment.

"The larger capacity models may need as much as 25 per cent more detergent. Also, the larger the load of items to be washed, the more detergent will be required," Mrs. Myers continued.

If the washer can be filled to different water levels, adjust the amount of detergent also, Mrs. Myers suggested. If your water is hard, adding a water softener may be better than adding more detergent. Repair records show that using too much detergent can cause washing machine problems—especially if it is a high sudsing product, the specialist pointed out.

IT WAS CROWDED . . . There were a lot of people around to enjoy the St. John's Catholic Church Festival Sunday at Hondo City Park. This shot taken by Tony Mendoza just shows a few of the thousands who crowded into the park to enjoy the popular annual event.

OUTDOORS 'n' THINGS

that is suited to that environment.

Moose graze in marshes, squirrels climb trees, camels live in deserts, and frogs sit on lily pads. In each instance it took some special adaptation to fit each animal to his environment. Some special adjustments are concerned with obtaining food, but many others are for self-defense or escape. Still others have to do with the terrain itself.

Take the Australian koala. This little teddy bear-like animal lives in the interior of Australia where surface water is scarce. About a dozen species of eucalyptus trees grow there, so the sole food of the koala is eucalyptus leaves. From them he gets all the water he needs, so he never needs a drink.

Specialized needs have shaped the head and beak of the woodcock, a little snipe-like bird that feeds on earthworms. He has a long, slender bill that allows him to reach far down into the burrow of the earthworm—but this has its disadvantages.

When his bill is buried in the earth he is vulnerable to attack from above. To counteract this danger he has eyes set near the top of his head. This lets him scan the trees for danger even while he probes in the earth for his breakfast.

All this makes him very efficient, but rather odd looking.

The jacana is a bird of the tropics that is sometimes found in the Rio Grande Valley. He has long, extremely thin legs and toes. This lets him run across lily pads, chasing insects, without sinking into the water.

His beak is nothing to shout about in the matter of defense, and the thin, weak feet are something less than dangerous. To defend himself he carries a switchblade. Right at the bend of his wings he has a sharp spur that he can flip out and rip his enemy to shreds.

The sea anemone is an animal of the sea that looks like a beautiful flower. It cannot move around, yet it feeds on swift, darting little fish. When a little fish swims close enough, a tiny thread shoots out of the end of the beautiful tentacle that looks like a flower petal. This little thread penetrates the body of the fish and explodes a paralyzing poison. The thread then retracts and draws the fish down into the digestive system of the anemone.

The two-headed skink is a little lizard that really doesn't have two heads. His tail just looks more like a head than his head does. A hawk, swooping down to catch this little fellow, makes allowance for movement in the direction of what appears to be a lifted head. The bird usually comes up with empty talons. The lizard scampered off in the direction the real head was pointing.

Nature is a wonderful thing. The next time you see a wild animal, a fish, a hawk, a rabbit, or a deer—make a note of the special adaptations that nature has evolved to let him cope with his environment.
